Mr. Brydenthal presented the following Special Resolution No. 6, 1966.

SPECIAL RESOLUTION NO. 6, 1966

WHEREAS The City of Indianapolis, through its Common Council, pauses to pay tribute to a man whose untimely death took away from us a dedicated, energetic, knowledgeable leader.

Howard F. Gustafson came to our city to direct the Health and Welfare Council. His immediate job was with the network of voluntary community services that were the Council's constituents, but he had the vision to know that the scope of the Council must extend beyond this network—must reach out and encompass governmental agencies and the community-at-large, in order to weave a harmonious pattern of growth and progress for this community, and

WHEREAS While Howard Gustafson was not officially affiliated with any governmental unit of our city or county, in the past decade he had become the strong right arm of many.

Our city has many problems; many needs; ranging from housing to health, from education to employment, from recreation to racial justice. While many citizens seem totally unaware of these, and a few know something about some needs, this man understood the complete picture. He knew the needs and the problems, but he knew also the path our city had to follow. He had the facts and knowledge and more—he had the dedication, devotion and ability to do something about it, and

WHEREAS To this end he remodeled his agency into the Community Service Council, with a broader base of membership which drew governmental units and community leaders into the planning processes, together with private and voluntary agencies serving the community's health, welfare and recreation needs. He sharpened and widened the focus of the CSC's research and planning activities so that problems became clearly defined, as did avenues to solutions, and

WHEREAS He drew in acknowledged community leaders, but he also shaped and molded other new and vigorous leaders from those whom he sought out from all walks of life, exciting and igniting them to work on community problems and to embrace them as their own. He had a rare ability to inspire concerted action, to make progress possible. More and more, units of government and elected officials turned to his agency, and to him personally, as our community moved out of the past and toward a future, and

WHEREAS He had vision that saw beyond the immediate job to be done. He was among the first to recognize impending problems of the inner-city; a housing crisis, the need for long-range recreational planning, to name a few. He sparked a movement to combine social planning with physical rehabilitation of the city more than a decade before this concept gained national acceptance.

It would be impossible to list the actual and tangible achievements that exist today because of this man's leadership, largely because of his personal modesty. His method was to focus on the problem, to match the job to be done to the community leaders who could do it, and to keep himself in the background, so the final flush of triumph was theirs, not his. But it would be fair to say that every inch of progress in our city in the past 10 years can be traced directly or indirectly to Howard F. Gustafson. He was the bridge between "should" and "can"—between "why" and "how." His was the voice to which those both with need and those with knowledge, those with problems and those with power, listened.

Just as it was never his purpose to win local recognition or acclaim, so it was that he never revealed locally his national and even international stature. His personal modesty was so great that it was a surprise to many who knew him well, who worked with him closely, when his untimely death unleashed a flood of national and international expressions of tribute.

He was outstanding in his own social work profession, as evidenced by the fact he was serving as president of the National Association of Social Workers, the highest post in his own field, at the time of his death. The pattern which he established here has been copied by many other cities over the nation to assess and attack their own problems.

From all over the world, from top governmental offices in Washington, from the nation's outstanding schools of social service, have come tributes, attesting to the national stature this man gained, simply in the course of doing the job he saw must be done for this city.

Many larger and wealthier cities had sought him out in recent years, but these inducements he turned down, because Indianapolis was not just his post—it was his and his family's "home," and

WHEREAS There is little that can be done to fittingly honor the memory of such a man, who avoided tributes in his lifetime—who placed a low value on personal recognition and a high value on achievement. A memorial fund has been established locally in his honor to carry on the work to which he was dedicated. A proposal has been made to name a park in his honor. A national award in his own field has been proposed to perpetuate his name.

But we, the Common Council of the city he served so well, who can see all around us the fruits of his dedication, can best recognize our debt to this fine man by even stronger and more concerned efforts to build a better community. This is the final tribute—the memorial that would most fittingly honor the man. Now, therefore, be it RESOLVED By the Common Council of the City of Indianapolis, Indiana; that the Common Council does hereby declare its deep regret and loss at the passing of Howard F. Gustafson, and does further convey to the family of Howard F. Gustafson, the sympathy and condolences of the Common Council and the City of Indianapolis, and instructs the City Clerk to spread a copy of this Special Resolution in the Journal of the Common Council and to send a copy of this Special Resolution to the family of Mr. Howard F. Gustafson.

Upon motion of Mr. Brydenthal, seconded by Reverend Cummings, the Resolution was adopted by unanimous voice vote.

Upon motion of Mr. Kuykendall, seconded by Mr. Brydenthal, the Council adjourned at 9:50 P.M. upon unanimous voice vote.

We hereby certify the above and foregoing is a full and complete record of the proceedings of the Common Council of the City of Indianapolis held on the 20th day of June, 1966 at 7:30 P.M.

In Witness Whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our signatures and caused the seal of the City of Indianapolis to be affixed.
