

ANNOUNCEMENT

IUPUI's Graduate Certificate in Teaching Writing

- Understand the nature of the "writing process" and how it can be effectively taught
- Create effective writing assignments with support activities and assessment tools
- Develop and articulate a clearer sense of your own theory of teaching writing

These are some of the learning outcomes you can expect when you enroll in IUPUI's Graduate Certificate in Teaching Writing. The Certificate is a 20-hour program of study for certified middle school or high school teachers, university writing faculty and lecturers in other disciplines, and M.A. students interested in earning a certificate in writing to enhance their professional teaching careers.

The Certificate requires completion of five graduate courses consisting of one core course and four elective courses. Evening courses are available during the academic year, and summer courses are offered in two-, four- and six-week sessions to accommodate teachers' schedules. Graduate credits earned can be applied toward the M.A. in English upon acceptance into the M.A.

Apply online in minutes: no GRE scores, no letters of recommendation. All you need is a teaching license or transcript showing you completed an undergraduate baccalaureate degree with a minimum 3.0 GPA. For further information or to apply online, visit the English Department's website (www.iupui.edu) or contact Pat King, Program Coordinator, at 317-274-2258.

Start this summer by enrolling in one of our summer offerings:

- W500 Teaching Writing: Issues and Approaches (Lovejoy), June 18-29, 9:00-12:15
- W508 Graduate Creative Writing for Teachers, Summer I, M-R, 1:00-5:00 P.M. (hybrid course)
- W531 Designing and Editing Visual Tech. Communication (Hovde), June 11-19, M-F, 9:00-1:15
- W600 Topics Course: Teaching Technical and Professional Writing, July 9-20, M-F, 9:00-1:15
- W605 Writing Project Summer Institute (Fox), June 11-29, M-F, 8:30-3:30
- W615 Writing Creative Nonfiction (Rebein), May 9-June 20, MW 6:00-9:15 P.M.